THE OLD STIFF.

The Argonaut has been going after the "Old California Stiff" with a sharp prod. He is compared with the real men of early days as follows:

They built the canal; he became the salaried secretary. They opened the mines; he became the paid superintendent. They started the ranch; he made a profit on the crop. They built the mill; he sold the lumber and the grist. They established the factory; he boarded the hands. They built the railroad; he made a fortune in transportation. They founded the city; he acquired the title to the principal block on a fradulent homestead filing.

During all this time he was actively engaged at sneering at the canal, in deriding the mine, hampering the ranch, in obstructing the mill, in discouraging the factory, in hindering the railroad, in belittling the city; and most especially was he active and exuberant in denouncing and blackguarding the miner, and the builder.

Nevada has any amount of just such old stiffs, who have been hampering every industry of the State ever since it began to amount to anything. He walks about sneering at every enterprise and don't realize how dead he has been for ten years past.

A CURIOUS CASE.

The fact that the jury of ten in the Jacobson inquest consist of six lifelong acquaintances of the deceased and three intimate friends of the family, show what curious coincidences will sometimes happen in the life of Coroner's deputy. Of course, the deputy in this in stance went out to summon a jury without the slightest intention of getting one that would render a verdict in accordance with the wishes of the family; and yet see what a large proportion of family friends he stumbled upon accidentally! It has been a case or curious coincidences throughout. For example, the detectives decided before investigation that Jacobson died at the hands of footpads, and Herman Warner. Clerks: W. M. it so happend that they afterward | Lang and James Hickey. interviewed only persons whose statements supported that view. They accidentally omitted to interview just those persons whose statements would have disproved that theory!

Altogether the Jacobson case is a very interesting one for the public to study over, as showing how "mysteries" are occasionally created and managed .-Daily Report.

GEN. GEO. ROBERTS.

The Republicians of Iahoe have nominated Gen. Geo. Roberts as Attorney General of Idaho. The writer has enjoyed a long personal acquaintance with General Roberts in Nebraska.

He was one of the best orators in the West and was elected At torney General of Nebraska three times, always running ahead of his ticket, for he never addressed an audience without making votes.

He was one of General Hookers Staff in the war, was in twenty engagements and received a wou, d at Malvern Hill that retired him from the service.

General Roberts great oratorical gifts and his legal experience and ability give the Republicans of Idaho a strong nomination for Attorney General.

It is uphill work to try to do anything for Nevada. The Board of Trade are honestly working to advance the interest of the State. A general invitation was extended to everyone to join in the movement but only one hundred and fourteen availed themselves of the privilege. The Democratic press, true to its instincts to prevent progression in any direction, are not leaving a stone unturned to tear down what the Board of Trade is building up, but notwith5 standing the opposition the Board will go on with its work of developement, and in time will cause a blush of shame to illuminate the faces of those who are doing their best to destroy its usefuliness.
